Dear Colleagues,

I am delighted to welcome so many people to the third conference of our organisation, the European Society for the Study of Personality Disorder (ESSPD). In particular I extend a warm welcome to people from outside Europe who have travelled far to join us although of course I extend a similarly warm welcome to those of you from Europe! The ESSPD has come to Rome this year, hoping to build on our highly successful conferences held in Berlin and Amsterdam. We are looking forward to an excellent programme which surely will meet our organisational aims of furthering research and increasing health service and public interest in personality disorder. It is a tribute to our members and Board of the ESSPD that there are so many of you who have been to the previous conferences and we hope that you will make the ESSPD conference a regular date in your diaries every two years. In the interim years we have a smaller clinically-based conference with extended workshops. Next year in June 2015 this will be held in Tallinn, Estonia. Further details are available on our website.

I would like to thank Cesare Maffei for his support as Chair of the conference committee and Andrea Fossati who organised the scientific programme. I am sure that you will agree that there is something of interest to everyone and, given our difficulties in choosing between the submissions, the programme is of a high scientific standard. In the scientific sessions we wish to promote discussion and I hope that many of you will feel free to question and to approach speakers during the breaks. Don’t be shy – a good conference is made by scientific discussion, networking, meeting people with similar interests, and learning from others. As an organisation we want to stimulate interest in personality disorder from young people and we have again awarded a young researcher prize. Make sure that you come to the award ceremony.

I look forward to meeting you at the conference and please stop me to give me your views at any time. This will be my last conference as ESSPD President and I would like to thank the ESSPD Board for all their support over the past 3 – 4 years. The organisation is flourishing and we can look forward to successful meetings in the coming years.

Anthony W. Bateman, United Kingdom
President European Society for the Study of Personality Disorders
Dear Colleagues,

On behalf of the Scientific Committee, I am delighted to welcome you to Rome for the 3rd ESSPD Congress on Borderline Personality Disorder and Allied Disorders. I hope that you will not mind if I share with you a couple of my professional memories. When I was a young trainee in Clinical Psychology in the early ’90s a lot of experts questioned the possibility of effectively treating BPD; at that time, even the existence of BPD as a personality disorder was called into question. Twenty years later we have learned that BPD exists, and prominent experts developed evidence-based strategies which proved to be effective in treating BPD. Indeed, in the last two decades we learned a lot of things on BPD, although many aspects of the disorder are still debated. Scientific knowledge suggests that the time has come to shed light on the developmental pathways leading to BPD, in order to explain the possible heterogeneity of BPD clients and to improve further the efficacy of evidence-based treatments for BPD.

The ESSPD conferences in Berlin and in Amsterdam represented milestones in the advancement of our knowledge on etiology and treatment of BPD; moreover, they were also extraordinary occasions for promoting the exchange of information between experts and participants (as well as among experts and among participants) from all over the world. Thus, the Scientific Committee of the Rome Conference had the exciting perspective, and the tremendous responsibility to organize a coherent system of courses, key-note lectures, symposia, workshops, and poster presentations which was designed to convey the state-of-the-art of the knowledge on BPD and related personality disorders. In our intentions, key-note lectures should represent for the participants unique occasions to meet, and learn from top-notch experts in BPD research. Workshops were designed to highlight relevant topics in the diagnosis and treatment of BPD in order to increase clinicians’ expertise in the clinical management of BPD clients, whereas symposia were designed to focus on the hot topics of research on BPD. Finally, we thought of CME courses mostly as hands-on experiences which should help participants to directly appreciate the basic techniques of different evidence-based approaches to treating BPD clients.

Of course, only you will be able to tell if the Scientific Committee was up to the task; in any case, I do wish to thank Anthony Bateman, Martin Bohus, and Christian Schmall for the terrific work that they did as members of the Scientific Committee. Since the present congress is taking place in Rome, let me wish you in Latin language that what you are going to learn from our experts will remain in your professional activity with BPD clients as monumentum aere perennis (i.e., a masterpiece which will last longer than a bronze sculpture).

Andrea Fossati, Italy
Chair, Scientific Committee of the 3rd ESSPD Congress on BPD and Allied Disorders
Dear Colleagues,

Welcome to Rome! When the Executive Board of the ESSPD asked me to organize this congress, I felt honored and at the same time aware that I was taking the responsibility to identify the best town in Italy. In 2003 I organized the 8th ISSPD Congress in Florence starting from the principle that every scientific congress is identified, and remembered, with the town where it takes place. If Florence could represent some centuries of the Italian history and fine arts, that is the Renaissance, it’s a matter of fact that Rome allows people to run through around 3000 years of human history and civilization.

It’s my personal opinion that, even if the chronological distance between Florence and Rome is only 11 years, the scientific distance covers not properly millennia, but some centuries. At that time we had to discuss on “controversial issues in PDs”, now our goal is to refine our knowledge on individual differences in pathogenesis, diagnosis and treatment.

In other words, it’s like if we moved from the necessity to identify and separate different kinds of plants or animals to the present responsibility to feed each individual plant or animal in order to guarantee a healthy and luxuriant growth.

My hope is that the deep historical roots of Rome will facilitate both speakers and attendants to obtain this result.

I also strongly hope that Rome will attract attendants from continents where the interest for Personality Disorders is now starting to develop. It’s a promise for future conferences.

Selection Procedure of the Awards
Posters have become increasingly important as a communication medium at congresses. In some areas of science, for instance in the medical field, posters have even become the core of the meeting. Indeed, on scientific conferences poster presentations are an efficient way to deal with the increasing demand of researchers to display and discuss their own research with colleagues.

The ESSPD wishes to stimulate this development and to increase the quality of poster presentations. For this reason all posters have been peer reviewed. During the congress a jury of three experts in our field will judge the posters.

All accepted poster presentations are candidates for the ESSPD poster awards. The poster award jury will evaluate the posters onsite during the conference and will announce the winner during the closing ceremony.

The final selection of poster awards will be made on the basis of the study’s scientific excellence during the congress. The best 3 posters will receive the 1st, 2nd and 3rd ESSPD poster award valued at € 300, € 200 and €100 respectively.
Plenary Sessions (PL)
Duration: 45 min
Eminent experts will present papers on the congress’ main topics.

Key Lecture (KL)
Duration: 90 min
Two eminent experts will present keynote lectures on "What I have changed my mind about".

Symposia (S)
Duration: 45 or 90 min
Each symposium of the congress is scheduled for 45 or 90 minutes which equals two speakers to four speakers (e.g. 2 x 20 minutes or 4 x 20 minutes including 2 or 4 x 5 minutes discussion) chaired by one or two scientists or clinicians (opening remarks and conclusions).

Workshop (W)
Duration: 45 or 90 minutes
Workshops help to further broaden the participant’s expertise in a particular field of knowledge.

Oral Presentation (OP)
Duration: 10 min + 5 min
The oral presentations have been selected by the Scientific Committee after abstract submissions had been reviewed. The 90-minute sessions are grouped by topics and chaired by selected specialists. The time slot for a single presentation is 15 minutes including discussion time.

Posters (P)
The posters have been selected by the Scientific Committee after abstract submissions had been reviewed. The posters are grouped into thematic poster groups. The poster tours will give the authors the opportunity to present their findings and discuss them with the audience.

CME Courses (CME)
Duration: 270 min
10 different CME-courses at an extra cost are offered on the 16 October 2014. It is not mandatory to register for the whole congress if you wish to book a CME-course.
